

Arrivals in America

Pennsylvania Arrivals

Immigrants to Pennsylvania after 1727 were required to take oaths of allegiance to the British crown. From 1729 they were also required to take oaths of abjuration and fidelity to the proprietor and the laws of the province¹. These two lists together with lists kept by captains of ships are the main sources of tracing emigration into Pennsylvania.

PASSENGER LISTS

The Captains' lists were generally prepared carelessly and without regard to uniformity. The lists were handled indifferently and many were lost. The original lists were generally written in the German script and many required translation.

All ships that contained Palatines left from either Rotterdam or Amsterdam and stopped at either Cowes, Deal or Portsmouth.

OATHS OF ALLEGIANCE AND OATHS OF ABJURATION

The lists of oaths of allegiance were incomplete but the signers of oaths of abjuration were preserved in bound books.

Daniel Rupp published a list of German immigrants² in 1856. In the 1920s the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania printed in the "Archives" a more complete and indexed list.

Ships lists and oaths lists from these publications with references to Hayde or similarly spelt names³are:

Stuttgart records obtained by Ancestry.com show the emigration of Jacob Hayd in 1737.

A book on emigrants from Baden-Durlach to Pennsylvania 1749-1755⁶ records the departure of Jacob Heyd from Groetzingen. This could be the Johan Jacob Hayd on the ship Edinburgh in 1752, however the parish records for Groetzingen show that he was a Hans Jacob. Was the Johann George Hayde who arrived in 1738 related?

The IGI does not have many entries for Pennsylvania for Hayde and its variants. None of those that do however can be obviously linked to any of the above.

Ancestry.com also has the following for Penns⁷:

Note 1

The first 4 children on this list would be those of Johann Georg Hayde/Johan Georg Hayd who arrived in 1738 – this family is extensively covered in research done by the Hite family. They were in Lancaster Co, Pennsylvania in 1790 as Heyde. They did not adopt the name Hayde.

Note 2

First two entries are probably for the same person. No sign in 1790 or 1860 census.
